House Building Software - powered by SiteStream

Making Strategic Forecasting easy with Eque2 Housebuilding Software

Eque2's Housebuilding software seamlessly integrates every stage of the house building process through its separate modules, Land, Build, Sales and Customer Care, which can be used together or separately for a solution that suits your business.

This factsheet examines how the Land module, as standalone software, can increase efficiency, accuracy and profitability, helping you make quick, informed decisions on land opportunities.

Create live cashflow modelling

Create simple, easy-to-manage cashflow forecasts for each job with fully automated cost and revenue allocation. Live cost and revenue information, fed by the Build and Sales modules, create live cashflow modelling so rolling forecasts are realistic and always up-to-date.

Make better-informed land purchase decisions

Make better-informed purchase decisions by viewing the key performance indicators of a forecast; consistent data and methods minimise the risk of errors, while 'what if' questions can be answered with speed and conviction at any stage of the project.

Report by plot and house type across all projects

Update business plans with high-quality, in-depth reporting that not only allows for an exhaustive company overview, but also offers reporting in-depth enough for drilling down into the fine details of any project with a level of analysis suitable for board authorisation or financial sanction.

Report on Profitability from Site

Gain a clear view of all business activity in real time with a standard suite of reports for internal reporting and submission to external funders, as well as collating profitability and performance feedback from sites.

Protect commercially sensitive data

Ensure total protection for commercially sensitive data by applying authorised entry controls, protecting methods and assumptions from ad-hoc changes. Introducing sign-off procedures, monitored and enforced by the system, offers additional security for your data.

Eque2's Housebuilding software offers a highly configurable and dynamic budgeting and monitoring tool for development projects guaranteed to give your business the competitive edge.
